

OGC: Procurement Efficiency & Value for Money Measurement

Efficiency Programme - Measurement Guidance

The methodologies for the calculation of procurement efficiency improvements have been categorised to reflect procurement professional's experience of where gains can be made. There are a number of typical procurement scenarios in which value for money savings or efficiency gains might be made:

- continuing purchase of commodity goods either separately or jointly;
- new or repeat contract for goods or services that have been previously procured either separately or jointly;
- one-off contracts for new goods and services;
- on-going contracts, agreed before the beginning of the Spending Review period, and which continue throughout the Spending Review period, that are renegotiated.
